

Monday 15th June 2020

Grammar

Learn to spell and use words which are 'near homophones'

Memorise the following words which are commonly confused with each other. They aren't quite homophones but they nearly are.

The following list is from https://www.spellzone.com/word_lists/list-4651.htm visit here to hear the words in context.

I'll eat anything except bananas.

The government cuts will affect everyone.

A rhetorical device, such as a question, is used for effect rather than to get an answer.

The upset baby did nothing but bawl all night.

My dog likes to bury bones.

The car had to brake hard.

Be careful not to break that glass.

Jane has fair hair.

He lost his bus fare and had to walk all the way home.

Grate some cheese to go in the sauce.

There was great relief at the rescue.

She keeps moaning and groaning.

I have grown tomatoes for ten years.

Shout across the valley to hear the echo.

He kicked the ball through the window.

The holly berry is bright red.

Wait here until I get back.